CHAUTAUQUA IS OPENED TODAY AT BEECHWOOD PARK

Maysville's 1921 Chautauqua Promises To Be One of the Best As Talent Goes for Many Years—Many Tickets Are Sold.

The 1921 Chautauqua opened Thursday afternoon at Beechwood Park. The first number on the program was the presentation of "The House of Rimmer," a Henry Van Dyke story, by the Canterbury Players. This same company of artists will present "The Right Road" this evening at 8 o'clock.

Considerable interest has been taken in the chautauqua during the past two weeks or more and scores of season tickets have been sold at the very low prices of $2 each admitting the holder to all performances of all kinds under the big tent during the eight day session. Tickets may yet be had at several places in the city for this low price and those expecting to attend at all should avail themselves of this low price as the single admission is much higher.

On Friday The Starr Russian Company, composed of native Russians, in their native costumes and on their native musical instruments, will give a concert at 3 in the afternoon. At 7:30 Dr. Thomas E. Green, hailed as America's most famous dramatic orator, will give his latest and greatest lecture, "Holding the Outposts." This one lecture is worth the price of a season ticket and it is expected that he will be heard by hundreds.

This year's chautauqua is under the management and control of the Leslie H. Arthur Post American Legion and the young men should be given the encouragement of the people of the city and county.

"LASSES" WHITE MINSTRELS

TO OPEN SEASON HERE.

The "Lasses" White Minstrels, which are now rehearsing at Cincinnati, will open their season and the local theatrical season as well at the Washington Opera House on the night of Thursday, August 25th. It will be remembered that this same troupe opened the season here last year. The company goes from Maysville to Lexington for a two days engagement.

Mrs. George Kirk left Thursday morning for Chicago to visit with relatives and friends.

LUKE P. DYE DIES SUDDENLY WEDNESDAY

Former Citizen of Mason County Died Wednesday Afternoon While Sitting In Chair at Flemingsburg Home.

The community was shocked Wednesday evening at the announcement here that Mr. Luke P. Dye, former Mason countian, had died very suddenly at his home in Flemingsburg shortly after noon Wednesday.

Mr. Dye was sitting in a chair at his home in the Fleming county town when he suddenly passed away. He had been ill health for some time but he was not thought to be critical.

His death is thought to have been due to heart trouble.

Mr. Dye was 57 years of age and is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons. He was a native of Mason county and spent the greater part of his life in this county. Several years ago he moved to Flemingsburg where he entered the hotel business and operated an auto truck line between Flemingsburg and this city. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made but burial will probably be made at his old home, Shannon, this county.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF MASON COUNTY:

It has been my endeavor to see the voters personally and solicit their votes. Being my first attempt at such work, I realize, as the election draws near, that I have not fully accomplished my aim. I appreciate the kindness and courtesy shown me during my canvass. As I have been a staunch Democrat all my life and have worked earnestly for the party—have never sought office before, I will greatly appreciate the votes of friends at the August 6th primary. I am in the race to win.

MOONSHINE STILL TAKEN IN 6th WARD

Chief of Police Harry A. Ort Captures Small Moonshine Still in Old Brown Factory Owner By Spencer Kimbrough.

Chief of Police Harry A. Ort at about 10 o'clock Thursday morning captured a complete moonshine outfit in a part of the old Russell Brown Factory along the C. & O. railroad in the Sixth ward. The still and its equipment is said to be the property of Spencer Kimbrough, colored, who was arrested by the Chief and lodged in the local jail.

Some time ago Chief Ort had a good tip that Kimbrough was making moonshine whisky and disposing of it in Maysville. At that time the officer warned Kimbrough that unless he stopped his operations he would catch him but Kimbrough stoutly protested his innocence of any wrong doing. Since that time Chief Ort has kept a pretty close watch on the place. The officer kept himself informed as to Kimbrough's every movement and he was under the impression, from his actions, that Kimbrough was about to make a run of liquor Thursday morning. The officer waited until it appeared that he had the liquor being made and then made a raid on the place. He found the complete outfit but the mash was not ready for distilling and would probably have been run Friday morning.

The outfit consists of a can for a boiler and a very small copper coil, probably the best coil yet captured in this section. The mash was being fermented in two wooden lard casks. Cracked corn, such as is being purchased here for chicken feed, was used but no manufactured liquor was discovered. Officers say that the outfit made no more than about a gallon of whisky every three days and Kimbrough is said to have been disposing of his product very readily.

Kimbrough was in his house when the Chief made the raid and was promptly arrested. Upon his person was found $27 in money. He was placed in jail waiting trial and the moonshine outfit was removed to police headquarters as evidence. A quantity of the mash was preserved for evidence but the greater part of it was thrown away.

Kimbrough was brought before Judge Whitaker Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock for an examination and after hearing the evidence Judge Whitaker held him for grand jury investigation and fixed his bail at one thousand dollars, in default of which he was taken to jail.

BAND CONCERT PLEASES.

The concert Wednesday night was a success. It shows the ability of our Director Geo. D. Barnard who took the boys to the band room and gave them a new piece called "I'm Nobody's Baby" and practiced it twenty minutes and came right up to the band stand and played same. He won't show the public how much they can improve on it when he plays it on August 20th in the band stand just before we start off to Germantown Fair.

The cornet solo "Humming" played by J. Barbour Russell, Jr., shows what a 14-year-old boy can do with one practice only, this will be a feature at Columbus, Ohio State Fair, Blue Grass Fair, Germantown and Ewing Fairs.

Keep an ear on these boys and watch the improvement next Wednesday night. Don't forget to see them at Beechwood Park Sunday in their red coats and smiling faces. Watch for the program they will play that day.

CURWOOD PICTURE PLEASED VERY LARGE AUDIENCES.

The James Oliver Curwood picture at the Pastime theater Wednesday night attracted a very large audience for all shows. These northern pictures full of ice and snow and wild as well as tamed animals are proving quite popular in Maysville this summer.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD

MEETS TONIGHT.

The Maysville City Board of Education will hold its July meeting at the office of Superintendent Caplinger in the High School building Thursday evening. There is much important business to be transacted as this is the first meeting since commencement week.

WIRE FAIR GROUNDS FOR NIGHT PERFORMANCES.

Mr. Henry Moore, local electrician, began work Thursday morning at wiring the Germantown Fair grounds for electricity. Evening programs will be given for the first time this year at the "Old Reliable Fair" and they are expected to prove quite popular.

MASON NEGRO MAKING LIQUOR IN FLEMING

Moonshine Still Said To Be Operated By Mason Man Is Found In Fleming County.

The Flemingsburg Times-Democrat

For some weeks suspicions have been had by the officers that moonshine was being made in the vicinity of Pleasantville, the colored village near the Mason county line, and on Thursday morning last Sheriff Fraze Hart, Chief Will VanArsdell and Deputy Geo. W. Powell made a quiet trip out the dirt road leading from Maysville pike to Pleasantville, and at an old tenant house on the Walker farm, which had no regular occupant, but where a negro named Richard Robinson had been permitted to sleep, they found one Geo. Smith, a Mason county negro, operating a still made from a 5-gallon coal oil can with a copper worm and all the necessary trimmings for making moonshine. The thing was in full operation when the officers surrounded the place, and several probable customers were just about to come from the road when they saw what was about to happen and beat a hasty retreat, carrying the news to Pleasantville, and it is supposed warning a moonshiner there to carry his still to the tall timber or high weeds. After smashing up the mash tubs and other trimmings, the posse brought their prisoner here along with the still and lodged both in jail to await the action of the October grand jury. So far Smith has not been able to give the $500 bond for his appearance, and will probably not be able to do so.

Voting places in the City of Maysville will be established as follows:

First Ward—Gables' Coal Office.

Second Ward—Sheriff's Office.

Second A.—County Jail.

Third Ward—Russell's Warehouse.

Fourth Ward—Plum Street Coal Office.

Fourth A.—Plum Street Laundry Plant.

Fifth Ward—Squire Dresel's Office.

Fifth A.—Dryden's Grocery.

Sixth Ward—Dryden's Coal Office.

Sixth A.—Old Hunsicker Coal Office.

Throughout the county the voting will be done in the usual places in the old precincts and in the places selected at the last election in the several new precincts established.

The women voters in the Democratic party are said to be showing little interest in the primary and a very light woman vote is expected to be cast but the men are showing much interest and a heavy vote is expected in most every precinct as each precinct is especially interested in one or more of the several contests.

Thomas Gaskins and Russell Beckett, the two alleged moonshiners captured in Lewis county, were brought before Squire Fred W. Bauer Thursday afternoon but because of the absence of important witnesses the case was continued until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

WILLIAM POOR'S FUNERAL FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The funeral of William Poor, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Poor, who was killed in a sandal in the Maysville sandpit Wednesday at noon, will be held from the home of the parents in East Front street at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon and burial will be made in the Maysville cemetery.

DIPHTHERIA FOUND IN THE COUNTY.

Dr. V. D. Guitard, Mason County Health officer, has discovered two cases of diphtheria of severe type in the Sards neighborhood and has taken every known precaution to prevent the spread of the dread disease in that section of the county.

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

THE MAN FOR THE JOB.

The selection of Honorable Martin B. Madden to be Chairman of the Appropriations Committee of the House is one that will unquestionably prove satisfactory when measured by results. Mr. Madden is a Congressman of sixteen years experience and because of his ability and tireless energy has been recognized as a leader in the Lower House. He has been an ardent and vigilant advocate of economy, and yet has not been the sort of "watchdog of the Treasury" who quibbles over every small appropriation.

From the geographic standpoint the selection is a good one. Like his predecessor, Representative Good of Iowa, Mr. Madden comes from the Middle West. His long residence and business activities in Illinois put him in touch with the business welfare of every section of the country.

In his private business, before being elected to Congress, Mr. Madden was a member of a large construction firm engaged principally in stone work. He is accustomed to handling large affairs in a large way. His successful experience in conducting private business justifies confidence in his judgment in passing upon matters affecting the financial affairs of the United States. Mr. Madden truthfully said, immediately following his election:

"The biggest thing before the country today is economy of expenditure without destroying the efficiency of Government service. The burden of taxation is so great that everybody feels it. Direct taxation has been imposed on nearly every citizen by the income tax laws so that at present there is a direct partnership between the Government and every citizen. This taxation burden must be lifted if possible without injury to the Government. It should be the aim of the Government to encourage its working partners in business life so that when they achieve success the Government should see to it that it does not take the major part of his earnings as at present under the war revenue laws."

Mr. Madden's most conspicuous service during his sixteen years in Congress has been as a member of the House Postoffice committee which has charge of legislation affecting the largest of the governmental departments. He took an active interest in the enactment of the Postal Saving Bank law, the Parcel Post law, and legislation establishing Federal aid in the construction of highways. He has been one of the most active members of Congress in securing legislation for the benefit of postal employees. As a member of the "Steering" committee of the House he demonstrated qualities of leadership which undoubtedly exerted a large influence in determining his selection as chairman of the Appropriations committee.

THE HERITAGE.

The Democrats evidently think that the Republicans will keep silent in the face of their criticisms because the country is not getting back to normal immediately. But there will be no silent acceptance of their unjust insinuations. Eight years of Democratic misrule got this country into needless debt, scrambled the railroads, encouraged slackening, and delayed negotiation of peace. At every turn in the effort to get back to normal, the Republicans find themselves confronting difficulties of Democratic creation. The people of the country ought to have these facts impressed upon their minds. Republicans will be and ought to be held responsible for what they do or left undone during the period of their rule, but allowance ought to be made and will be made for the handicaps under which they are laboring.

CORROBORATED.

The Senate simply corroborated the finds of the people when it decided against Secretary Daniels and upheld the contentions of Admiral Sims respecting the conduct of the Navy during the war. But it is satisfying to the public to know that proof was not wanting that the ballots of November last, which voted Daniels and his crowd out of office, were worthily cast.

SAFE WATER ON RIVER STEAMERS.

The days when carelessness in regard to the supply of drinking water on river steamboats, particularly on the Mississippi, sowed typhoid fever and dysentery among passengers, seems to be over. Since April, when the U. S. Public Health Service assumed the supervision of water supplies on steamboats engaged in interstate commerce, boat companies on the Mississippi and Ohio have installed water purification apparatus for supplying their boats; and independent vessels are fast installing them where necessary; that is, where an ample supply of "certified" water is lacking.

TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often despondent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would give relief, and doctor's medicine did nothing for me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MAUDE E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New York. — Seeing the African jungles through the eyes of a six-year-old child is the treat Carl E. Akeley, explorer and sculptor is anticipating with enthusiasm. Mr. Akeley, who will leave next month on his gorilla hunting expedition in Africa, will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley, of Chicago, their six-year-old daughter, Alice, and Mr. Akeley's secretary, Martha Akeley Miller. The gorilla is to be captured alive, photographed and put into motion pictures. The party will also collect material for a sculptured group of stampeding elephants, a native lion spear-hunting and various other dramas of jungle life for the American Museum of Natural History here in New York. Mr. Akeley was a member of the Roosevelt African expedition and jungles are not new to him; but he believes that watching a child see it will be an experience fraught with new interest.

Irving Berlin is the latest writer for the stage to become the owner of a theater. 'The Music Box' which promises to become the particular joy of this song-writer's life, is nearing completion on West 45th street. Ivy Sawyer and Joseph Sanfey are the first members to be chosen for the "music box" revue which opens the new theater in September. It is to be produced under the direction of Harrard Short with the assistance of Florence Moore.

—NY—

There's no use going through all the mother of packing up and finding another apartment and causing speculation among the neighbors—just because you can't get along with your husband—or your wife. So decided Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Baumann, of West New York. They reached the decision nine years ago that they could never agree on anything except that they were off each other. She rest of the world has only just discovered this incompatibility, however, because they simply decided not to speak to each other and to regulate their lives without the slightest consideration of the other's plans, and they let it go at that.

They've stayed in the same house.

The children are accountable only to Mrs. Baumann and the three boys contribute to her support. "We have got along very well during these past nine years," Mr. Baumann said the other day when the story came out somehow.

"That's why we intend to keep on living this way. We never speak and rarely see each other and it works fine."

—NY—

New York City's wealthy groups, with summer homes scattered from British Columbia to the Italian Alps, are coming home to Manhattan to get cool. It is quite the custom in and around New York to remark that "Of course NO ONE is in town in the summer." As a matter of fact quite a goodly percentage of our population sticks around. And enough strangers come to visit us to make up for the one-fiftieth or so who decamp with the first breath of June. But this season not even the one-fiftieth is leaving us for long. "It's so hot there we've come back home to get cool" are among this summer's oftest said words from the mouths of these New Yorkers who feel that it is almost demanded of them that they appear to scorn the city in summertime.

—NY—

I have lived in New York for —well, quite a few years—and never until yesterday did I find out what the men cry that come through the courts underneath the rear windows of your apartment looking for old clothes to buy. It took me one year to learn that much—that it was old clothes they were after. But their words were beyond me. But now I've learned them! "Ple cash." Some day I expect to find out why the Battery is called the Battery. LUCY JEANNE PRICE

DEPLORES TALK OF FUTURE WAR WITH JAPANESE

Noted Jap Statesman Declares There
Is No Chance of Feared Conflict.

Tokyo. — Former Speaker Saburo Shimada of the House of Representatives, who, because of his oratorical powers, is often called by Japanese the Wendell Phillips of Japan, is contributing a series of articles to the Nichinichi Shimbun on relations with the United States in which he deplores an described talk of war.

The distinguished parliamentarian holds that if the situation between the two countries is studies from a broad, statesmanlike attitude, such talk will become meaningless.

He says: "Possibly there are no Japanese who seriously think that Japan is able to attack America across the Pacific as there will be no Americans who dream of an American invasion of Japan. Some think that the immigration question will probably furnish a casus belli between Japan and the United States, while others are of the opinion that the scramble for rights and interests will lead the two countries to war. These questions are not of such a nature as to be solved by an appeal to arms.

"American misunderstandings about Japan may be dispelled by the efforts of diplomats who can explain the general tendencies of the world, and Japan's position, plainly and fearlessly. Immigration is no more a question with America than with Great Britain, which is Japan's ally."

"Such a problem can be solved with the progress of civilization and mutual understanding. It is not the whole American nation that objects to Asiatic immigration on racial grounds. America is a free country, where any sort of opinion can be expressed with perfect freedom. It is not surprising, therefore, that from the Japanese standpoint some of the arguments in America about Japan may seem too bold and reckless. It is a mistake to think, however, that these views represent public opinion in America.

"The questions pending between Japan and the United States at present are likely to be solved with the passage of time. It is true that there are some Americans who are not satisfied with Japan's doings in China and Korea, while there are other Americans who perfectly understand Japan's position.

"Japan is not without faults. During the progress of the war Japan concluded with China what is known as a military agreement; by which it was undertaken that Japanese officers should be engaged as instructors in the Chinese army, and the common use of arms by the Japanese and Chinese was stipulated in the agreement. This not unnatural gave rise to the suspicion among the occidentals that Japan is attempting the Japanization of China in the same way as Germany contrived the Germanization of Turkey. The twenty-one demands presented by Japan to China are also potent cause of misunderstanding of Japan among Europeans and Americans. In the Siberian intervention, America proposed that similar numbers of troops should be dispatched to Siberia, but whereas America sent only 7,000 men, Japan dispatched as many as 70,000. This aroused the suspicions of America as to the real intentions of Japan. Japan's failure in Siberia is clear from what has followed since then.

"But really educated, thoughtful Americans do not believe in such a thing as war between Japan and America."

The value of the catch of the fishermen of Canada in 1920, amounted to

New York. — Seeing the African jungles through the eyes of a six-year-old child is the treat Carl E. Akeley, explorer and sculptor is anticipating with enthusiasm. Mr. Akeley, who will leave next month on his gorilla hunting expedition in Africa, will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley, of Chicago, their six-year-old daughter, Alice, and Mr. Akeley's secretary, Martha Akeley Miller. The gorilla is to be captured alive, photographed and put into motion pictures. The party will also collect material for a sculptured group of stampeding elephants, a native lion spear-hunting and various other dramas of jungle life for the American Museum of Natural History here in New York. Mr. Akeley was a member of the Roosevelt African expedition and jungles are not new to him; but he believes that watching a child see it will be an experience fraught with new interest.
